SHOT BY HOUSE-BREAKER.

George Shambacher of New York Fatally Wounded Yesterday.

New York, April 15.—George Shambacher, a wealthy real estate dealer, 50 years of age, was shot and fatally wounded in the dining room of his home in East 44th street early yesterday. His family believe that a burglar surprised by Shambacher shot him.

Mrs. Shambacher told the police that she and a son, Herman, were awakened by the report of a weapon and both hurried to the dining room in time to see Shambacher stagger across the floor and fall. In reply to questions the dying man said only:

"I've been shot" and pointed to an open window. Immediately after he became unconscious and died within a few hours.

The family's theory is that Shambacher, who came in late after having collected rents from several tenants, was unable to sleep because of asthma, and left his bedroom which adjoined his wife's, with the intention of walking up and down the dining room. He had done this before when restless. They think that he interrupted the work of a house breaker. He was shot in the intestines and the wound did not suggest suicide to the surgeons.

The widow was Shambacher's second wife. He married her five years ago. She was formerly a maid in the family. The children, of whom there are nine, two sons and seven daughters, were by the earlier marriage.

TRAIN WRECKERS

KILL THREE MEN

Westbound Passenger Train Plunged Into Open Switch While Running at High Rate of Speed.

Alexandria, La., April 15.—Three men were killed and one probably fatally injured, as the result of what is believed to have been the work of train wreckers at Cheneyville, 30 miles south-east of here on the Texas & Pacific railroad, early yesterday. A westbound passenger train plunged into an open switch while running at a high rate of speed. The wreckage caught fire and the mail car, baggage and express car and two passenger coaches were burned.

The dead are: Engineer John W. Govington and Fireman Michael Kaas, both of New Orleans, and an unidentified man whose charred body was found in the wreckage.

Express Messenger William Kough, of New Orleans, was badly injured. An investigation showed that the switch lock had been broken and the switch turned and the signal lantern thrown away. A full investigation is now being made by the railroad officials.

MANNERS.

Can They Be Acquired or Are They Inherited?

England is discussing the question, "Can charming manners be taught?" Most mothers hold, consciously or unconsciously, one of two theories about the acquisition of manners by their children.

One mother says, "Manners are only the outward sign of the inner nature. If my daughter has a kind heart and a well-trained mind she will behave in a gentle, charming fashion. I will teach her compassion, respect for age, unselfish zeal for helping with the world's work. Her manners will take care of themselves."

Another mother says, "My girls will never get on without conventional manners. They shall be taught from babyhood to emulate the speech and bearing of ladies. They shall be instructed in the proper behavior for every occasion. They shall walk and dance and write and speak with graceful perfection."

Neither method produces altogether satisfactory results. Unselfishness is truly the foundation of good manners, but not the superstructure. Many conventional restrictions have grown about social relations. Some can be explained by the demand of kindness and some cannot. Could a child infer from his desire to help others that he should not eat with his knife? Many offences against good taste in dress or in the crowded car, the rights of others, but many others do not.

Still, no set of rules to produce a polished lady will achieve a result fit for the strain of life. The manners of the French boarding school may adorn the person, but are too likely to fail at the breakfast table or in the crowded car. The woman of perfect manners must re-enforce her usefulness by the social rules, and conventionality must be vitalized by the warm desire for others' pleasure. The best life never "comes naturally," whether in manners or in morals.

The secret of charming manners is the desire for them. When the mother wishes them for her daughter as much as she wishes the other goods of the world, her daughter will have them.—Youth's Companion.

No Subject For Congratulation.

A young lawyer, not noted for intelligence, succeeded in having a client acquitted of murder. Meeting a friend a few days afterward, the lawyer was greeted with warm congratulations.

"Yes," said the lawyer mopping his brow, "I got him off, but it was a narrow escape."

"A narrow escape? How?"

"Ah, the tightest squeeze you ever saw. You know I examined the witnesses and the argument myself, the plea being self-defense. The jury was out two whole days. Finally the judge called them before him and asked what the trouble was."

"Only one thing, my lord," replied the foreman. "Was the prisoner's counsel retained by him or appointed by the court?"

"No, gentlemen, the prisoner is a man of means," said the judge, "and engaged his own counsel."

"I could not see what bearing the question had on the evidence," continued the lawyer, "but ten minutes later he filed the jury, and what do you think the verdict was?"

"What?" asked his friend.

"Why, not guilty, on the ground of insanity."—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Strike Breaker in Boston Accused of Shooting

SPECTATOR OF QUARREL

Men Were Hurling Sticks at Headquarters of Strike Breakers When Four Revolver Shots Were Fired From The Building.

Boston, April 15.—The teamsters strike for the first time been attacked with bloodshed, a man said to have been a spectator of an encounter between a mob and strike breakers being hit in the mouth by a bullet fired, it is alleged by one of the strike breakers. John J. Gaffney, 23 years old, of New York, who was arrested at the strike breakers headquarters on Albany street is accused of shooting Spiros Frisco, aged 19 years.

Prisco is said to have been standing in a doorway across the street from the strike breakers' headquarters watching a crowd of men, some of whom were hurling sticks and other missiles at the windows yesterday afternoon. Three or four shots are said to have been fired from the building, but only one took effect. That one hit Prisco in the mouth, causing a dangerous wound, though it is believed the injury will not prove fatal.

The police made a rush for a room occupied by strike breakers and arrested Gaffney, one of the strikers, as the man who did the shooting. Prisco was taken to the hospital.

Earlier in the day three of four strike breakers were followed by a crowd in Broadway, South Boston, and missiles were hurled at them. One off he men, James King of New York, was hit on the head, suffering a severe scalp wound. He was taken to the hospital and the crowd was dispersed by the police.

WOMAN ELECTROCUTED.

Attempted to Use Telephone and Turn On Electric Light at Same Time.

Marlborough, Mass., April 15.—Medical Examiner E. G. Hoyt, decided yesterday that a shock of electricity caused the death of Miss Anna W. Greenwood, who was found dead Saturday evening sitting beside a telephone instrument at her home. Contact made by the young woman's body with telephone and electric light circuits as she was in the act of taking up the telephone receiver and turning on an electric light switch, is believed to have brought about the accident.

The medical examiner said that he did not allege negligence on the part of either the telephone or electric companies, but that the happening was an unfortunate one, the responsibility for which had not been fixed.

UNION FARM PRODUCTS.

Trades Unionists and Farmers Working For Mutual Interests.

The movement to secure co-operation between the agriculturists of the west and the trades unionists of the cities has taken its first practical step in Chicago, says Joseph B. Buchanan in the New York Journal. Union eggs and union butter are now within the reach of the union householder in that city.

The first shipment came from a farmer in Kansas, and it is the intention to keep up the shipments and to increase them as the demand grows. The object is to secure for the farmer the top market price, without the reduction of commission, and to furnish the products of the farm to members of unions at a figure which will pay the producer and meet the cost of handling, the element of profit being entirely eliminated.

Dealings will not be limited to butter and eggs, but will embrace the entire list of farm products that are suitable for use by the consumer without first passing through a mill or manufactory. At the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor fraternal relations were established between that organization and the Farmers' union with a view to co-operating for their mutual interests. It is understood by the trade unionists generally that the farmers and the wage earners are to pull together in politics as well as in economics; that not only is it the plan to secure advantages for both parties to the agreement through the distribution of farm products, but in undertakings to obtain the passage of laws for the advantage of either or both.

Already in some western states the trades unionists and the farmers' unions are working together for the passage of laws by the state legislatures, and there is no reason why the field for such work should not be broadened so as to include every state—every agricultural state at any rate—in the country. It is coming, and nothing will bring these two elements, which are the mainstays of society, together more quickly than the practical evidence that the farmer can help himself by helping the wage-earner.

Among arrivals at the City hotel to-day are B. J. Chichester, J. E. Miles, Burlington; J. B. Wells, Randolph; H. H. Simmons, Boston and F. J. Allen, Portland, Me.

NO-LICENSE MEETING.

Rutland, April 15.—A. L. Pratt and A. L. Smith of this city, who are chairman and secretary, respectively, of a committee appointed just before the March election to form a permanent organization in this city to work against the open saloon have sent the following notice to many Rutland citizens:

"You are cordially invited to a meeting in the interest of no-licensing, on Tuesday evening, April 16, at Odd Fellows' hall. We think the time is ripe for a permanent organization, to foster and develop the public sentiment of Rutland against the open saloon. The great increase in the no-licensing vote this year, warrants us in believing that thorough work can bring about permanent victory. The plan on which we propose to organize comprises the following features:

"Quiet, systematic work along lines commendable to business men. "Strict non-partisanship. The movement should be kept distinct from other issues, whether personal or partisan. Men of all shades of political opinion and party affiliation should be able to unite with us. This rule should be made iron clad and every public speaker so informed. "Printed matter of the right sort ought to be more widely used and a careful canvass should be made to ascertain the views of the community. "Careful and watchful oversight of the enforcement of all liquor laws of whatever nature; this to be done with judgment and discretion. "In brief, aim at sanity, thoroughness, and persistence. We need your help. Come to the meeting if you can."
